INDIFFERENCE

It takes 43 muscles to frown and 17 to smile, but it doesn't take any to just sit there with a dumb look on your face.

And dumb looks is what was the order of the night this past Wednesday at the back lot field of Harvard Park. Ambient energy was at an all time low as kickball teams battled each other with nerf equipment instead of heavy steel armor and blood smeared swords of the past. Typically, Wednesday nights bare a striking resemblance to the magnificent displays of pure strength and honor found within the walls of the Coliseum in ancient Greece. Instead, the night was filled with the mediocre stench of the lame. The ridiculous and, quite frankly, uncalled for taunts of the Fighting EMU carried through the moist air. EMU Warning: You are quickly becoming to cocky for your own good with that lack-luster appearance against the Baby Walruses. (Who appeared to be teething during the game due to their severe distracted attention span.) The shrill and feeble gloating of the many 500 (2-2) teams filled the after hours events at the dub overshadowed the silent but deadly Looking To Score squad. LTS is quietly trying to slip it in the back door and go to work. Do not be fooled by their charm and wit, they will only use that to destroy what stands in their way to kickball stardom.

The one true highlight of the night was a rabid banana roaming the fields of Irvine. Enticing the women of Ca Central with his phallic appearance, the large yellow shaft sent waves of pleasure to all that partook in the sweet indulgence of the very basis of the food pyramid.

FLIP CUP POWER RANKINGS

1	FIGHTING EMU Back on top of the flip cup charts with a impressive display of one and outs.
2	RISKY BIZNESS Finally put in some playing time after a little bit of taunting by the EMU's.
3	KILLER WALRUSES A lack luster performance after a disgraceful appearance on the field.
4	ALCOBALLICS Right where they want to be, too drunk to really give a flying rats ass about flip cup.
5	LOOKING TO SCORE So distracted by their second place finish on the field, LTS cared about little else and it showed at the table.
6	SMACK THAT Smacked down again. We are trying to abuse the smack reference as much as possible. Total references to date in SIS: 7.
7	BALL BUSTERS Clean-up on aisle 5. BB never seem to be able to find enough bodies to bust a move at the bar.
8	THE CH. 4 NEWS TEAM Finding Ch. 4 News at the dub is becoming akin to spotting the Lochness Monster or Area 51. We know you exist.... Somewhere.....

KICKBALL POWER RANKINGS

1	FIGHTING EMU So good it's boring. Perhaps they should change their name to the crotchless edible under garments. This may create enough distastefulness to raise the bar of the lack luster energy around the league.
2	LOOKING TO SCORE The force is strong with this one. Continuing to put on a razzle dazzle display of growing talent and spreading kickball cheer throughout the night.
3	KILLER WALRUSES Sex Panther. I'll be honest with you, it's a formidable scent. Kids, I think I hear your momma is calling you home for bath time to clean up your dirty spots.
4	ALCOBALLICS Winning a kickball game this drunk is like dodging the Irvine Police that wait for all the drunk saps to wander off the field on Wednesdays. Please don't DRINK and DRIVE.
5	RISKY BIZNESS How Stella got her grove back is a great prime time spot to follow for network news. Too bad RB put the kibosh on any breaking stories of a winning Ch. 4 news crew.
6	THE CHANNEL 4 NEWS TEAM* Your winning streak was as short as your recap this week! Keep up the low expectations. Mediocrity: It takes a lot less time and most people won't notice the difference until it's too late.
7	BALL BUSTERS On paper your roster is as solid one could hope for. Can we expect a late season comeback or perhaps a playoff run? Maybe when pigs fly, cough damn, swine flu.
8	SMACK THAT* Smacked up again and again, you are definitely the Achilles' heel of Ca Central. Your captain should start charging the opposition for batting practice.

* Brand new team.

Kickball 101

Greetings boys and girls, Professor Kickball, PhD here – your guru for the ins, outs, and what-have-yous about kickball: The rules and strategy. Face it folks, this is not NAM, there are rules. Rules we must follow. There is also strategy. Yes, some of us kickball die hards actually have strategies. Each week we will discuss a topic to help improve your knowledge of our beloved sport. So, heads up and stay alert for Kickball 101.

FIGHTING EMU VS KILLER WALRUSES

Submitted by Fighting EMU

The Fighting Emu held a practice on Wednesday night. A random team dressed in purple arrived at the field for some unidentified reason volunteered to play us and we scrimmaged. The EMU taunted this team relentlessly as if they were a truly ferocious competitor. But alas, they were no more than an inexperienced traveling circus act. The EMU will continue to train in preparation for real CA Central league play in the near future. When these "real game" will happen is still a looming question for the EMU Squad. Leo "BIG MOUTH" Contreras was heard on the field saying, "I am tired of practice and scrimmaging. When are we going to get some real field time?" The purple circus show left as quickly as they appeared, never to be heard from again.

Submitted by Killer Walruses

Hawaiian themed or not, nothing seemed to help us this week! We probably could've taken tips from the little league-ers that have the field right before us. Actually, maybe we should start recruiting them!

Aside from many dropped balls (and I'm not talking about the males on our team) and only scoring one run, it was definitely a fun week. The jello shots were so lethal that the gelatin didn't even harden. Jason (el presidente) was wearing a vest that was 10 sizes too small for him. There was even a certain EMU that kept yapping. I think he just likes to hear himself talk. And for you old school EMUs... he's almost on the same level as your original captain, Chris. Almost.

RISKY BIZNESS VS. CH. 4 NEWS TEAM

Submitted by Risky Bizness

Breaking News! That is, Risky Bizness defeats the News!

What do you call two in a row? Oh, that's right... a streak! Risky Bizness picked up their second win in a row in a 2-0 nail biter over The Channel 4 News Team. Rookies they may be, but Channel 4 had a solid outing and really gave The Biz a run for their money! The game was packed full of solid defense and one of the best pitching duels this league has seen (Jameson Lingl – rookie pitcher of the year?). Risky Bizness got on the board with great kicking and base running from Patrick Geilfuss, Michelle Butler and Mike Swofford. A special thanks to Michelle for taking that ball to the dome...it may have been painful, but you advanced the runners!

Besides Risky Biz's stellar pitching, awesome defense, great kicking, and fantastic base running, a much larger discovery has been made: JELLO shots are mandatory!!

Channel 4's win streak ends at 1 game.

ALCOBALLICS VS BALL BUSTERS

Submitted by Alcoballics

One day they're ice cold, the next day they're hot. We're not talking about the Lakers...we're talking about the Alcoballics. They came back this week after a devastating loss to Looking to Score and beat the Ball Busters 7-0. Sorry Ball Busters, I don't think even reversing a couple questionable calls could have saved you in this game. Don't write off the Alcoballics quite yet. Fuck yeah bitches!

Submitted by Ball Busters

The Ball Busters weren't playing their "A" game. We lost...enough said!

Courtesy of the Walruses...a new rule has been established.

Rule #999 - When reffing stand directly behind the kicker so the kicker blocks your view of the ball. Instead of calling it a strike...call it a ball because you weren't able to see it. Teams will love you for this!

LOOKING TO SCORE VS SMACK THAT

Submitted by Looking To Score

Seriously, we are simply the shiz.

No...really...we are.

You should be honored to be reading our recap. We're LETTING you read our recap.

Where to begin? How about Maria's AMAZING dive to home, sliding across and making the most dramatic score in kickball history. Or Elizabeth's hot potato catch with 3 of us standing by to catch it as the ball bounced around her arms for what felt like 5 minutes. Or Justin taking off his shirt to display that he is indeed the Hulk? Or most importantly...our WIN!

We're getting so used to winning that we now have two facts:

1. The novelty of winning is still there, but its been often enough to not phase us as much...that's a good thing.
2. We've won enough times that we're allowed to be smug. Mmmmm. Feeling smug feels sooooooo good.

This author will cut Smack That some slack because they ARE a new team, and as the team formerly-known-as-B&B we know what it's like to be the new kid on the block.

Next week we're gonna get our Risky Bizness on...prepare yourselves to be curled up in the fetal position by the end of next week's game. Oh yeah! I said it! Mmm hmmm that's right!

Submitted by Smack That

We here at SMACK THAT find that winning is not so important, not as much as having fun, getting along and getting a little sloppy. We know that is expected for us to say this since we haven't won since the 1st week, but this week's game vs. Looking to Score was the best game yet! We put our hats down for their good sportsman like conduct as well as keeping the bitching to a minimum (which is so hard to come by these days). It seems like more and more that people bitch and cry about the ambiguity of the rules rather than enjoying the game.

Now moving on to the shit talking and this is of course is the best part, starting from the wild and crazy pitching style to amazingly lucky catches. If there were an award for such feats then it would definitely go to them! The team captain even played hot potato with the ball as she attempted to catch a pop fly, eventually bear hugging the ball for a ridiculously awesome catch, all while wearing a grass skirt mind you!! This was only surpassed a by their pitcher who threw what I would have to say was a "knuckle ball," the first I have seen in kickball. Looking to Score is definitely an up and coming team.

With all this to deal with our team still held our heads up high and eyes wide open, even with only 11 players (bare minimum to not forfeit) we played our hearts out; probably the first time some of our team members actually sweated. Even our injured player showed up just to show support, though he could not play, it made a big difference on our morale (thanks Mike). Though it was a late game and most of us had work early the next day we felt rather compelled to show up at the bar and enjoy our victory, not of winning the game because we clearly lost, but of playing the game without any issues and arguments. Happy B-day to our Captain! Whoop- Whoop for SMACK THAT!!

LETTER FROM THE EDITORS

As editors of 7th Inning Stretch, we stand by our work. We stand by the fact that our work is completely fabricated, grossly inaccurate, or totally plagiarized. Of course, our creativity and brilliance can only last for so long, so we really need your help to make the SIS diverse and fun. We're asking – no, begging – you to send us content: pictures, opinions, events, letters, drawings, and weird stuff you found on the internet, whatever! Because the more you write, the more we don't have to, and the more partisan your SIS will be. Otherwise, what are you going to do all day – your JOB???? Ha, ha. Pass us the tomatoes.
