Remember playing kickball in elementary school when the only thing that mattered was trying to kick the ball past the in-field and sliding for the sake of getting dirty? And did anyone ever watch the cartoon show "Recess" that aired on ABC's One Saturday Morning? Now those kids knew how to play some awesome, fun kickball. I mean, it was a freakin' cartoon! Of course they knew how to play kickball! Being adults, you think that we would take the game less seriously than kids, especially since a majority of us get to experience happy hour without being on the said team (re: Jello shots). It just makes more sense that we would have a good time and enjoy the company of all. However, that wasn't the case this past week. I'm not too sure what happened, but I know that people took the game too seriously, myself included. Words were exchanged and feelings were hurt. That's basically it. And overall, it just sucks. I mean, yeah we all paid over $60 to play in this league so we all feel entitled to something, but does it really matter that much? Because we all know at the end of the day, we'll forget most of the game at the Flip Cup or Beer Pong Tournament that follows immediately after the game. I don't want to ramble on with a repetitive message, but I just want to remind everyone that it's more than just a game. Actually, it's less than that! IT'S KICKBALL! We should be having more fun than we are, and I think once we actually try to do that rather than worry about the score or bad calls, we'll enjoy it a lot more.

jay kay. Have a fun week, everyone! ☺

Thought of the week: Derogatory and offensive language is not appropriate on or off the field. Please be respectful of other players.
